

International Year of Plant Health 2020 - Protecting plants, protecting life

Publicata la brochure della FAO sull'Anno Internazionale della Salute delle Piante 2020 (International Year of Plant Health 2020 - Protecting plants, protecting life)

Plant health is a global issue. The International Year of Plant Health (IYPH) brochure shows how FAO and the International Plant Protection Convention (IPPC) are working to protect plant health worldwide. The publication provides in-depth spotlights from countries in five regions to illustrate what can be done to secure healthy plants and plant products from pests and diseases. Governments, private sector, farmers and agribusiness, and finally the general public, can all contribute to plant health with specific action.
